

The PACIS Prize of Scientific Computing (PPSC Plate) is intended to be the premier scientific computing prize in South America. The winner receives a modest monetary award, the PPSC award plate and becomes an honorary member of PACIS. The award is announced six days before the Conference of Computational Interdisciplinary Sciences (CCIS). The prize recognizes the academic contributions and exceptional achievement in the scientific computing areas as computational mathematics & statistics, computational physics and chemistry, computational biology and medicine. It was established by Panamerican Association of Computational Interdisciplinary Sciences in 2010. The winner is selected by a committee appointed by PACIS officers.
